Sat., April 4 is Final Day to Register or Update Registration

Chicago Election Board Chairman Langdon D. Neal noted that Saturday is the deadline for voters to act if they need to register for the first time or file a name or address change.

“If you already are registered to vote at your current address, you need not act. But if you need to register to vote or file a name or address change, we want you to know about the Saturday deadline, because there will not be Election Day registration next week,” Neal said.

The “Grace Period” registration and voting program is open at all 51 Early Voting sites in Chicago. Those who use the “Grace Period” program need to:

- Present two (2) forms of ID, at least one of which shows the voter’s current address. These IDs may include a driver’s license, state ID, passport, pay stub, utility bill, bank statement, government check or other government correspondence.
- Be ready to vote during the same visit. Those who use the “Grace Period” cannot use absentee or Election Day voting.

All Early Voting/Grace Period sites are open daily 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. through Sat., April 4. To alert voters to the deadline, the Election Board published special notices in the Sun-Times, RedEye, the Chicago Defender, and in various Spanish, Chinese, Polish and Asian-Indian publications. Voters may check their registration status, find their polling places, and access sample ballots at chicagoelections.com or by calling 312-269-7900.
